

The dog training industry is unregulated and anyone can call themselves a dog trainer. It is a constantly changing field and it is essential that dog training professionals keep up to date with current thinking and research, through attending talks, seminars, conferences, reading books and watching webinars that are given by other professionals in the field that use modern, up to date training techniques. Professional organisations also insist on continuing professional development for members, I must complete a minimum 30 hours of CPD each year.

So here is my CPD to date:
